

VittlesVamp

Musings on food, drink and merriment...from a decidedly decided perspective...

CHECKING IN & CHECKING IT OUT

And so the gal's weekend in California wine country began.

Karen and I made our way to the charming and historic Napa River Inn, where we delighted in our luxurious accommodations, the ample marble bathroom and the comfy beds outfitted with goosedown and such, and even the soft echoes of "choo-choo" emanating from the Napa Wine Train across the river. The only drawback? The room's working fireplace, which both made us regret that we were on a gal's weekend instead of a romantic escape.